

Morningside Teachers' Academy

28th Annual

Summer School Institute

July 16- August 3, 2018

Attend Weeks 1 & 2, July 16-27

The Morningside Model of Generative Instruction (MMGI) has been developed over the last 37 years and has a track record of improving the academic performance of children, adolescents, and adults in over 125 locations. MMGI has developed classroom practices based on scientific research in psychology and education, combining well-designed instructional materials with researched-based procedures for instruction, practice to fluency, and application in reading, math, writing, reasoning & problem solving, and the skills to succeed in a content course. The Summer School Institute (SSI) is the perfect opportunity to experience these methodologies in action.

Learn the fundamentals of instruction; counting, charting and analyzing behavior with the Standard Celeration Chart; and reasoning and problem solving with Thinking Aloud Problem Solving (TAPS). Three afternoons will be devoted to a review of best curricula in reading, math and writing. Attendees who are present for both weeks will assist in a elementary or middle school classroom and receive coaching each morning. Those attending one week will be able to observe classrooms in action.

Attend Week 3, 7/30 – 8/3

Participation is open to behavior analysts and other program designers, including graduate students. Everyone must attend the first 2 weeks to be eligible for week 3. Participants will be coached as they design a program for learners back home. Each Participant will present their program design to the group for feedback.
